

the Avenue d'Antin, is surrounded, were taken out on the backs of soldiers and rescued in boats.

A large number of the schools are closed because of the lack of heat, and the municipality is considering the advisability of closing all of them.

Practically all of the flooded suburban towns above and below Paris tonight are without light, and several of them are without water. Their inhabitants are hastily leaving.

The Chamber of Deputies held a sitting today in the water-battered Palais Bourbon, believing that an adjournment or a transfer of their activities to Versailles, as had been suggested, would only serve to increase the popular panic. Parliament today voted a bill extending business notes one month.

Messages of sympathy and offers of assistance are pouring in upon the government from individuals and societies all over the world.

Touched by Sympathy.

The French government is deeply touched by the expressions of sympathy that have been received from abroad. King Victor Emmanuel and the Italian Cabinet have sent messages of condolence, and Pope Pius has transmitted $6,000 to Monsignor Amette, the Archbishop of Paris, for use among the sufferers in his archdiocese. Emperor Nicholas and the King of Belgium also have sent $2,000 each for the poor of Paris.

In addition, public subscriptions have been opened in Belgium for the flood sufferers. It is difficult to present a mental picture of the geographical limits of the submerged area of Paris, but, roughly speaking, it is estimated that the surface inundated from the Seine, which must not be confounded with the overflow in the back streets from bursted sewers and subterranean rivers, covers about nine square miles, or one quarter of the city.

The telegraph lines are down in every direction, and communication with England, Holland, Denmark and Austria and many of the cities and towns in France is completely cut off.

New districts are being flooded constantly, and the people are evacuating blocks of buildings, several hospitals, where sick and numbers of refugees were taken, are in a dreadful plight, owing to the water having reached their cellars and quenched the fires in the furnaces.

Four hundred patients were hurriedly removed in ambulances from the Hospital de la Salpêtrière to the Hotel Boucicaut. Their rescue was dramatic and timely. The hospital already is isolated, and a new rush of water threatened to level it.

At this moment the fireless prefect of police, M. Lepine, arrived and sent out a score of policemen on bicycles to summon ambulances and boats and additional police and soldiers.

Patients Saved.

The coroner, the fireless prefect of police, M. Lepine, arrived and sent out a score of policemen on bicycles to summon ambulances and boats and additional police and soldiers.

Thousands of Americans in Paris, especially the artists and students in the Latin Quarter, are being bombarded with calls for help from anxious relatives. The Associated Press has been requested to announce that all Americans are safe. A few of them have been obliged to leave their lodgings in the lower part of the city, but the Latin Quarter is high and safe.

Red Cross Makes Appeal.

Washington, D. C., January 28.—The American Red Cross Society, having been notified to-day by Robert Bacon, American ambassador in Paris, that contributions from this country to aid the flood sufferers in France would be acceptable, to-night issued an appeal to the American public, saying in part:

"The Red Cross hereby appeals to the people of the United States to contribute with their characteristic generosity to the relief of our neighbors, whose misfortune calls for our sympathetic aid, and whose suffering is deepened by the loss of their homes and possessions."

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE CALLS FOR GENTLE TREATMENT

Delicately formed and gently reared, women will find, in all the seasons of their lives, as maidens, wives or mothers, that the one simple, wholesome remedy which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally, and which may be used with truly beneficial effects, under any conditions, when the system needs a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. It is well known to be a simple combination of plants with pleasant aromatic liquids, which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system when its gentle cleansing is desired.

Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna can hope to get its beneficial effects, and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy, the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package, and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. The genuine article may be bought of all reliable druggists everywhere; one size only. Regular price 50 cents per bottle. Get a bottle today to have in the house when needed.

The cable from Mr. Bacon confirms previous dispatches from Paris to the effect that no Americans, so far as known, have been injured by the flood, although some of them, among them the ambassador himself, have been obliged to leave their homes and seek new quarters.

HIS SHORT STORY FOOLED JUDGES

New York, January 28.—The judges who recently acted in a short story writing contest in the Brooklyn Boys' High School, a fellow-feeling these days with the faculty of the University of Copenhagen. Like the Trusting Danes they have been "stung."

The contest was organized by the Recorder, the school paper. Second prize, a silver medal, was awarded to a student who submitted a story entitled "Cupid and the Mouse." The supposed author accepted the medal, and all went well until a magazine reading parent of one of the students saw the story in the columns of the Recorder, with the name of the young "author."

The tale was so familiar to him that he began looking back over the magazine. Eventually he found it. The story had been written by O. Henry, the well known magazine writer, and published some time ago, with illustrations. The "author" modestly refrained from submitting the illustrations with Mr. Henry's story.

Things began to happen to the young "author" right away. In the Assembly Hall, Dr. James Sullivan, the principal, indignantly told the school that one of the competitors had cheated in the contest. The offender was called to the platform. For the honor of the school the doctor held the culprit up as a horrible example, and the cheating student now finds life at the Marcy Avenue Institution anything but pleasant.

It was learned yesterday that a similar case had come to light in the Eastern District High School of Brooklyn. In a short story contest conducted by the school paper a prize was awarded to one of the boys. The story was found to be the story submitted by him had been stolen.

AMUSEMENTS.

Irishapolis, Ind. The wounded men are Harry McGarvey and Albert J. Montgomery, homes unknown. Both will recover.

The men were serving short terms for minor offenses. At the end of the month, when the prisoners were marching back to their places of employment in the yard, the three men made their futile dash for liberty.

The remarkable success of this group of accomplished young women has been one of the unique chapters in the history of company organization. They were deliberately picked, sent to the leading musical and literary colleges of the country, and educated for the specific purpose of attempting concert work of a high class, and they have abundantly proved the wisdom of the novel experiment. The quartet to-day is presenting one of the finest musical programs ever offered on the lecture circuits.

Among the specific features of the concert will be a sextet of saxophones, a septet of brass instruments, a septet of wood wind instruments, a quartet of clarinets and flutes and duets in various combinations. A splendid vocal soloist will also be with the company.—Adv.

TAFT MAKES PLEA FOR SQUARE DEAL

Warns Publishers Against Too Harsh Judgment of Officials.

TENDS TO WEAKEN CRITICISM

Dolliver Predicts That Postage Will Not Be Needlessly Raised.

Washington, D. C., January 28.—President Taft told the delegates to the Periodical Publishers' Association of the United States to-night that they overloaded their criticisms of men in administrative authority with unparliamentary expressions and intimations as to lack of honorable motives, nobody is going to pay any attention to them. Although he made no direct allusion to "muck-raking," it was plainly evident at what he was directing his attack.

President Taft was presented by E. Hopkinson Smith, toastmaster of the occasion. Continuing, the President said:

"As to controversies, let me say that all are questions of evidence, questions of fact that must be weighed broadly to reach an ultimate conclusion. It is the case with every trust, as much as we condemn them, for their iniquities. The evidence must be weighed. It does no good to denounce a person if the witness stand if he testifies against you."

"You controllers of public opinion and controllers of the rulers of the country, may hammer a man into indifference as to what you say, but at last you will come nearer to doing right than if he tried to fight. But seriously speaking, I would like to say that when you criticize a poor devil, exercising a difficult responsibility, first give him the same benefit enjoyed by every criminal, that of reasonable doubt."

"Secondly, don't use unparliamentary expressions if you can help it, for if you do, and if you overload your criticisms with superlatives and intimations as to his lack of honorable motives, in the end you will weaken all your criticism and judgment that is needed. I don't agree with some of the committee, who started out by shouting, 'Graft and robbery,' but nobody should be led astray just because some gentlemen's heat carried them away from the bounds of judgment."

"In respect to this matter of the postage, it is for judicial investigation, and a conclusion should be reached on a calm business basis. I have no doubt that you will find in the committee of Congress that careful judgment that is needed. I don't agree with some of the committee, who started out by shouting, 'Graft and robbery,' but nobody should be led astray just because some gentlemen's heat carried them away from the bounds of judgment."

The President was given prolonged cheers as he concluded.

Postal Question Discussed.

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, in addressing the publishers, went directly to the postal question, and aroused an uproar of appreciation when he said:

"I venture to predict before the postage is raised on the literature which is being read by millions of Americans there will be rather an elaborate examination of the postal affairs."

Cyrus Curtis, president of the Periodical Publishers, and editors of all the leading magazine in the country, were present. Among other speakers was Speaker Cannon.

He declared that the publishers to-day were getting their magazines delivered by the government cheaper than they could be sent in any other way. He urged them to co-operate with Congress, as far as they could, in securing legislation which would enable them to place good literature as cheaply as possible.

He made a strong plea in favor of organization, declaring that it is necessary for the successful running of the country. Without it, he said, there would be chaos in government.

"With those men in patience," he added, "with those men in patience, most good to belong to one party, and not good enough to belong to the other."

A letter from Rudyard Kipling was read, in which he expressed his regret at being unable to be present.

CASES ARE HELD UP PENDING ELECTION

They discussed the coal cases, and Mr. Ballinger said he thought that where there had been only a technical violation of the law, the patents ought to have been issued. Glavis said he agreed with him.

Inquiry Stopped.

Glavis said he was ordered May 2, 1907, to discontinue the Alaska inquiry and take up the Oregon cases, where he had recommended that something were not done at once the statute of limitation soon would prove a bar.

"I also said the Alaska investigation should not be dropped at that time," added Glavis.

"In June, 1908, I prepared a report of this subject for Commissioner Dennett, but learning that he was to be in Oregon soon, I did not send it. When he came to Oregon we talked the matter over, discussing the entire situation. Dennett said he did not think there should be any criminal prosecution; that he thought it was sufficient if the claims could be canceled."

Representative James: "What criminal offense had the claimants committed?"

"Conspiracy to defraud the United States."

Representative James: "And that involved perjury?"

"Yes."

Representative James: "But Dennett took the view that if they were kept out of the land that was sufficient?"

"Yes."

Suggests Budget Committee.

Washington, D. C., January 28.—Suggesting the creation of a committee on budget to determine at the beginning of each session of Congress the limit of appropriations by each committee of the house in view of the prospective revenue of the government, Representative Douglas, of Ohio, to-day insisted that only by such a method could expenditures for preparations for war be kept down in the interest of the larger allowances for the advancement of agriculture. In appropriating 71 per cent of the revenue for warlike purposes and only 3 per cent for agriculture, Mr. Douglas declared Congress was not acting for the best interests of the people.

end, he said, would be accomplished if all appropriation bills were considered by a single committee.

General debate on the agricultural bill was concluded. On a point of order, the House eliminated a provision authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to purchase and destroy animals suffering from pleuro-pneumonia.

The House spent more than two hours in a fruitless academic discussion of the tariff with special consideration of its effect on the present high prices of food products. The debate was precipitated by a set speech by Senator Lodge contending that the rate of duty have no effect on food prices. Senator Bacon responded, taking the opposite view. The controversy was participated in by Senator Bailey, of Texas, and others.

Senator Gallinger indicated opposition to the speedy disposal of the post-savings bank bill, and Senator Bailey announced that he would oppose it every time it came up.

The House resolution providing for an inquiry into the cost of the transportation of second-class mail matter was referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads.

The House adjourned at 4:35 P. M. until to-morrow, when the Senate at 4:10 P. M. until Monday.
